

"I am a better person when I have less on my plate." - Elizabeth Gilbert. This saying resonates with me because of its hunger for balance. It is a reminder not to take things too seriously, to take things in stride, and yet to always have something delicious to nibble on (this is definitely a personal reading of it!), whether it be a book, to work on a project, or to learn something new. It's to keep my curiosities focused, and yet at bay, which I find is very important in the field of teaching, and being a student of life."

ABIGAIL LAUREL

English Teacher

Teaching since 2017,
English Teacher, Writer, Singer.

Certificates

Bachelor of Arts in Literature, De La Salle University;

TEFL Certificate (Teaching English as a Foreign Language).

Qualified to teach

English up to Foundation.

Success Cases

Abigail has helped facilitate two successful summer camps for children in remission in her hometown. Her ability to teach and lead children in all aspects of their growth is strongly grounded in her experiences here. Students to this day remain in contact with Abigail because of the bonds that have formed here. Recently, she has also lead classes on arts and crafts for young learners (ages 7-10) in a few international schools around Ho Chi Minh City. Parents are gifted by their children with new and refreshing pieces of art to keep in their homes. As an on-going project, she leads weekly English Club events with adults.